Hide Sizes And Shapes

Leather is a natural material meaning each hide is unique and will vary in shape and size. The most common leather types you will see are created using skins from cows, lambs, goats, and pigs. These diagrams represent the dimensions of the average hide shape and size for each of these different types of leathers.

Use these images and diagrams as a reference for which hide type will be best for your project.

Please remember that these diagrams are to be used as a reference and these are not exact measurements of each hide.
